We are delighted to be congratulating Congress Centre-Sofia on their win of this year's AIPC Apex Award after such a hard-fought competition amongst so many highly qualified participants,' said AIPC President Barbara Maple.

'This win is a real tribute to their great relations with clients, who are the ultimate decision-makers in the AIPC Apex Award program and the basis on which the winner is selected. Their achievement is a demonstration of the extent to which great service and satisfied clients can advance a centre in today's highly competitive meetings market.'

Congress Centre-Sofia is the largest convention centre in South-Eastern Europe. Penny Raeva, marketing director of the winning Bulgarian centre said: 'I'm very glad that all our hard work and our effort to give the best service has given us such a great award.'

The AIPC Apex Award is made annually on the basis of a comprehensive performance and customer satisfaction analysis carried out by an independent team at the University of Applied Sciences in Heilbronn, Germany. The blind evaluation used in the selection process ensures an objective analysis of the data arising from a series of surveys covering such topics as congress facilities, project management, customer relations, catering and technology. Surveys are completed by event organizers and meeting planners and provided in confidence directly to the evaluation team, who rate centres accordingly.

Runners-Up

The AIPC Board also recognized the two runners-up to this year's award; last year's winner Cairns Convention & Exhibition centre in Australia and Congress Innsbruck of Austria who were the award winner in 2001.

'While we salute Congress Centre-Sofia for their achievement, the fact is that all participants are winners, since each competitor gets an individual evaluation report on their particular centre's results which enables them to see how they are rated by clients in various aspects of their operations. This allows them to identify areas that may need improvement, which in turn addresses AIPC's overall mission of enhancing excellence in centre management,' says Maple. The Award was initiated in the year 2000 as a way of recognizing the achievements of AIPC members in congress centre management. Previous AIPC Apex Award winners have been the Melbourne Exhibition & Convention Centre in Australia, Congress Innsbruck in Austria, the Vancouver Convention & Exhibition Centre in Canada, the Palacio de Congressos y de la Musica de Bilbao in Spain and Cairns Convention Centre in Australia. |||
